Chicktime is a grass roots movement that encourages women to develop their passions and use their gifts to make the world a better place!

Dear ,

It wasn't until Chicktime was well underway that I discovered its true impact, and the reason so many women are drawn to this organization, the reason why Chicktime exists. The mission of Chicktime is to encourage women to develop their passions and use their gifts to make the world a better place. The mission is broad, and beautiful. It forms the basis of how we do what we do: Stop the cycle of abuse.

From the very beginning, I knew I was supposed to somehow create a network of women across the USA to bring love to victims of abuse. But I had no idea how it was going to happen or the deeper reason I was drawn to the mission. I'm often accused of being impatient. This is true, I am. But I wonder, if I had gathered as much information as I could and mapped out the strategy to fulfill the purpose of the organization, would I still have formed Chicktime? My guess is no.

The monumental weight of the problem of child abuse would have crushed me before I even began. So, I focused instead on establishing and building my local chapter by bringing the love of the local community into one children's center serving little girls recovering from untold abuse. At the same time, I built a website and told everyone who would listen that Chicktime was going national someday. I knew that I would use my love of writing to build a relevant website, and my love for people in making the time to train new leaders. It is honestly a good thing that no one asked me the details of how this would play out, because I had no idea. I just knew that it would, and it has. One chapter at a time! (excerpt from the book Chicktime by Lori Rhodes)

We are well on our way to establishing a sustainable and viable network in our nation partnering with charities caring for victims of abuse. We must continue to seek out these charities and partner with them, spreading their work to our local communities, and sharing our love and time with the victims they serve.

You can help by supporting your local chapter leaders. You can help by spreading the word about Chicktime. Our book is available for free online and in print and kindle. Share this book with anyone you know who cares about the abused. Watch the short 60 second video above and share it on Facebook, Twitter, Blogs, etc. Attend a Chicktime event in your area and bring your friends, family, colleagues, and neighbors. Travel to the Texas Hill Country and attend Discover Chicktime with our original chapter. It is like a mini women's inspirational weekend, it is free, and it happens every month!

Abuse is a daunting issue. We can't do everything, but we can all do something... and we should!

Joyfully,

Chicktime Welcomes New Chapters

Chicktime Bulverde (Texas) Laura Sowell

*Laura is re-establishing the Bulverde chapter

Sisterhood is powerful. ~Robin Morgan

Welcome to Chicktime Bulverde. I am ecstatic to re-establish this chapter and look forward to meeting you!

To share a little about me, I am blessed to have grown up in a family filled with incredible women who have had much influence in my life. My mother and three older sisters have been around my whole life showing me unconditional love and support even when I probably didn't deserve it. I have a very special relationship with all four of these wonderful women.

Recently, I have been missing something in my life and I was struggling to find what it was. After trying on my own and not getting anywhere, I asked for God's help. (I know I should ask and I found Chicktime. From the moment I volunteered with the Canyon Lake Chicktime chapter, I knew Chicktime was where I needed to be. I have volunteered with many great organizations, but to me there is something different about Chicktime. I cannot explain exactly what is different; the women from all walks of life coming together, the charity allowing us to come onto their campus and have fun with their girls, the children in need, or simply the magic of all these wonderful people coming together and spending the morning together sharing their lives and love.

Chicktime has many locations hoping for a chapter. Click the map for more info!
