I watched the new Tina Fey movie this past week. The reviews were poor and only 61% of viewers enjoyed it, but I love Tina Fey so I went anyway. It turned out to be one of those movies that made me think. A lot. I walked away wanting to be more like Tina Fey. Funny. I thought of all the issues I had going on in my life and how much easier they would be to deal with if I would approach them with humor and wit. I am determined to make this happen but it isn't going to be easy.

For me, this will be an almost impossible feat because I wasn't born with a natural sense of humor or wit. I am the more serious type... analytical, a deep thinker. But I am determined. Especially when I think of anecdotes like this one:

According to a news report, a certain private school in Washington was recently faced with a unique problem. A number of 12-year-old girls were beginning to use lipstick and would put it on in the bathroom. That was fine, but after they put on their lipstick they would press their lips to the mirror leaving dozens of little lip prints. Every night the maintenance man would remove them and the next day the girls would put them back. Finally the principal decided that something had to be done. She called all the girls to the bathroom and met them there with the maintenance man. She explained that all these lip prints were causing a major problem for the custodian who had to clean the mirrors every night. To demonstrate how difficult it had been to clean the mirrors, she asked the maintenance man to show the girls how much effort was required. He took out a long-handled squeegee, dipped it in the toilet, and cleaned the mirror with it.

I think we could all use a bit more humor in our daily lives. Our solutions would become more fun (and probably more effective!) Life would be better perhaps if we would genuinely pursue the silly in every day life.

Joyfully,
